Dear Tzufang (Orchid) Huang:

This letter will constitute an Agreement between Routledge, a division of the Taylor & Francis Group (the "Publisher"), and you for the inclusion of your contribution:

International Students at Four-Year Institutions: Developmental Needs, Issues, and Strategies in Student Engagement in Higher Education edited by Shaun R. Harper and Stephen John Quaye ("the Editor") to be published by the Publisher.

You shall deliver your Contribution, in accordance with the specifications and word length provided by, and in form and content satisfactory to, the Editors. You shall provide, with such delivery, written permission from copyright owners for use of any text, illustration or other materials contained in your Contribution that have been previously published or are otherwise copyrighted and owned by third parties. You acknowledge that it is your sole responsibility to obtain such permission.

In consideration of your Contribution, the Publisher shall provide one paperback copy of the Work to you upon publication without charge and you shall have the right to purchase 10 additional copies at 30% discount. You shall be given full authorship credit for your Contribution on the first page of your Contribution as it appears in the Work and reference to your Contribution may be made in promotion of the Work. If, for any reason, your Contribution is not accepted for publication in the Work, all rights to your Contribution shall revert to you.

The foregoing shall constitute the full consideration for your Contribution and you shall be entitled to no other compensation or reimbursement of any kind from the Publisher in connection with the Work or your Contribution.

On request from Publisher or Editor, you shall promptly read and return any page proofs of your Contribution.

You grant to the Publisher the exclusive right to use the Contribution in the Work. Copyright in the Work shall be owned by Publisher, which shall have the exclusive right to publish, and license publication of, the Work, including the contribution, in all editions, including translations, adaptations and derivative works, and in all forms and media. However, copyright in your individual Contribution shall be retained by you and you shall retain the right to publish, and to license others to publish, your individual Contribution in: (a) other books, professional papers and journal articles or other publications, in any form or media, authored solely by you; as well as, (b) any other publication, in any form of medium, to which other authors contribute, provided you have obtained Publisher's prior written confirmation that such publication does not conflict with Publisher's publication of the Work.

You warrant that the Contribution will be your original work (except for materials you include in it for which you provide valid written permission of others), and that its creation and publication will not be libelous or violate any copyright or any personal proprietary right, including rights of confidentiality of patients, of any person or entity. You agree to indemnify the publisher against any breach of such warranty.

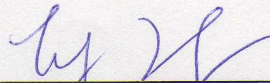

You understand that the Publisher will proceed with the use of your Contribution in reliance upon this agreement, which shall not be revocable.

This letter constitutes the entire agreement between you and the Publisher and supersedes any other understanding, oral or written. This agreement is made under and shall be governed by New York law. Its provisions may not be modified, canceled or waived unless in writing signed by both you and Publisher.

If this letter satisfactorily states our mutual agreement, please sign and return one copy of this release, while retaining the other for your records. We look forward to the publication of your contribution as part of this important and much needed Work.

Sincerely,

Accepted:
